It is a massively in-depth performance analysis, and once the system is factored in, the relative physical difference between each player is displayed more realistically across every touch of the ball. It enables fans to really see the players, and their more exaggerated physical differences, in close detail. The new system will be available in all FIFA games in the next three years. The fans of FIFA will be able to experience even more detail and authenticity of these players in their gameplay. With a host of new features – including in-depth player performances, more realistic ball physics and more action-packed gameplay – FIFA 22 offers the ultimate real-world football simulation. Features For the first time, in-depth new Physiological Profile (PHYSP), based on real player measurements, is used to realistically model the physical and performance traits of each player – from Body Control and Strength to Acceleration and Aerial Ability. Across all modes of the game, you will see the reaction of the players, the intensity and readiness to run, the speed and acceleration on the ball, and so much more. This will be an essential element to create more realistic gameplay. An all-new artificial intelligence (AI) system has been built into the engine and will work with the Physiological Profile to create more intelligent opponent behaviours. The AI acts the same way that real people would act, making decisions according to their needs and conditions. The AI uses the information from the Physiological Profile to decide whether they should press, when to release the ball, when to run forward or back and how they can use their player to create their attacking strategy. FIFA 22 introduces the new Goalkeeper AI System, the first of its kind in the FIFA series. In the past, the game would enable the goalkeeper to have a better shot at goal, but never fully live up to its potential. This is not the case with the new FIFA 22 goalkeeping system, as the goalkeeper now lets go of the ball with timing, never forcing the shot and never in a desperate attempt. The move “stops” are clearer and more accurate, and the goalkeeper “slips” are more intuitive than ever before. The new goalkeeper AI will find the right balance between defense and offense. Users will also be able to create more realistic matches with configurable substitutions, including using either man-marking or man-on-man. The AI can also be given specific instructions, such
