Steps for creating a custom Google Analytics code script Getting started This tutorial assumes you've read Introduction to GA and Settings/Testing and you are ready to go. If you haven't, I recommend to start there. Add an experiment In the AdWords reporting platform, go to Experiments and click on Manage Experiments. The experiment listing page is like so: In the left navigation panel, select Actions/Sites and then select Add New Experiment. In the wizard below, name the experiment, select the experiment site, and give it a description that will help with organization. I recommend adding a link to the experiment. Next, let's choose the website to which we would like to add the experiment: Click Save, and there will be a green plus button that will take you to the experiment. If you're not familiar with GA, the options should look like this: If you are unfamiliar with GA, I recommend walking through the beginning tutorials. Note that you can use the tracking code to track any page on your website. If you want the tracking code to track a specific page (for example, the front page), navigate to the page you want to track and paste the tracking code into the code box. Update the tracking code Hit the edit button to update the tracking code, and paste the following code into the Tracking Code box: Setup the other pieces of Google Analytics Step 1: Set up the Tracking ID (optional) Click the Tracking ID field. In the field, paste your tracking code, and then select Save. When you use the custom code in your experiment, you will need a corresponding Tracking ID that is unique to the experiment. To set this up, navigate to Admin>Tracking>Manage Tracking ID. Track the URL The next step is to add a tracking script to your web page. On a web page, this is normally done by using the placeholders (standard HTML
