St Mary's Church, Wimborne St Mary's Church is an Anglican church in the town of Wimborne Minster on the Isle of Purbeck, Dorset, England. It is situated on the market square, close to the modern town hall. The church has a typical Dorset (Perpendicular) church style of aisled nave and chancel with a clerestory, north and south aisles, north and south transepts and a western tower. History It was founded in 1291 as a priory of Clare of the Cross, the first in England to bear that name. It was a daughter house of Colchester Abbey until its own dissolution in 1539. The church was declared a Grade I listed building on 21 October 1952. Hepatocyte growth factor(s) modulate drug transporters and multidrug resistance protein 1 (MRP1/ABCC1) expression in human promonocytic U937 cells. Hepatocyte growth factor/scatter factor (HGF/SF) is known to reverse multidrug resistance by down-regulating the expression of the P-glycoprotein (P-gp) and multidrug resistance protein 1 (MRP1/ABCC1). However, it remains unclear whether HGF modulates the function of these proteins. The aim of this study was to determine the effect of HGF/SF on the multidrug resistance associated with the P-gp and MRP1/ABCC1. We found that the cytotoxic effect of vincristine and doxorubicin in HGF-treated U937 cells was significantly decreased compared with the control group. Expression of P-gp and MRP1/ABCC1 in HGF-treated U937 cells was significantly down-regulated compared with the control group. We also found that HGF/SF did not significantly affect the proliferation of U937 cells. These results suggest that HGF/SF is one
