AOMEI Partition Assistant is a free all-in-one partition and hard..As congressional Democrats and the special counsel investigate President Donald Trump's personal lawyer, Michael Cohen, for his contacts with Russians, they are increasingly relying on legal opinions produced by the Justice Department's Office of Legal Counsel (OLC). In addition to secretly gathering information about Trump, Cohen and Trump's children, the OLC has produced advice on legal questions related to the Russia investigation. OLC help could prove key to how the congressional investigations proceed in the Trump era. Whether Trump was involved in Cohen's undisclosed payments to Stormy Daniels, a former adult film star, and Karen McDougal, a former Playboy model, during the 2016 election is an important question for investigators. So is whether other steps Trump took to benefit the election, such as attempts to dissuade his political opponents, violate campaign finance laws. OLC has written that "in some circumstances, foreign contributions to campaign funds—particularly, contributions from foreign nationals—may violate federal law." OLC has also opined that "an individual may not make a contribution to a candidate or campaign committee in an aggregate amount in excess of $2,700." If Cohen violated campaign finance laws, it is unclear whether prosecutors would need to determine whether Trump knew about it or benefited from his lawyer's actions. If Cohen acted on Trump's behalf, that may be particularly relevant to Trump's mental state. This is what OLC's legal interpretations can tell investigators about the president. Cohen provided information to OLC According to OLC's official history of its Russia investigation from 2016, the Justice Department received a request for legal advice from Cohen on Oct. 8, 2016. The request concerned allegations that the Russian government had hacked into Cohen's email account and provided it to WikiLeaks, as it had done in the summer of 2016 with emails belonging to the Democratic National Committee. The OLC letter specifically asked whether "any such incidental retention of communications" would violate the Foreign Agents Registration
